

Fös, 21/01/2011 - 08:43

p>"From that moment on, I was no longer a liberal, a believer in the self-correcting character of American democracy. I was a radical, believing that something fundamental was wrong in this country - not just the existence of poverty amidst great wealth, not just the horrible treatment of black people, but something rotten at the root. The situation required not just a new president or new laws, but an uprooting of the old order, the introduction of a new kind of society - cooperative, peaceful, egalitarian."

Howard Zinn, 1994, í endurminningum sínum, "You Cant Be Neutral on a Moving Train"

Source URL: <http://www.attac.is/node/139>